

JEFFERSON WELLS LAUNCHES TECHNICAL ACCOUNTING AND FINANCIAL REPORTING CENTER OF EXPERTISE

Michelle Search-Winters Promoted to Global Director of New Center of Expertise

MILWAUKEE – December 14, 2010 – Jefferson Wells, a global provider of risk advisory, tax, and finance and accounting-related services, announced the launch of its Technical Accounting and Financial Reporting Center of Expertise. In addition, Michelle Search-Winters has been promoted to the Center of Expertise's global director, providing strategic direction and leading its day-to-day operations. She will be based out of the firm's Denver market.

The Technical Accounting and Financial Reporting Center of Expertise offers Jefferson Wells' clients access to focused, in-depth expertise for specific processes and technical issues pertaining to the accounting and financial reporting landscape, focusing on effectively and efficiently balancing compliance initiatives with bottom-line activities. The Center of Expertise is comprised of experts in accounting standards and financial reporting, IFRS, convergence, XBRL, policies and procedures, mergers and acquisition services, and related regulatory requirements.

"With a deep understanding of the accounting and financial reporting landscape, Jefferson Wells is in a unique position to enhance our clients' technical accounting and financial reporting functions and help them balance their compliance initiatives with bottom-line activities," said John LeBlanc, vice president of product management for Jefferson Wells. "Michelle has an extensive background in providing technical accounting and financial reporting services and trusted guidance to organizations of all kinds, and we are excited to expand our services and capabilities for our clients."

Search-Winters has more than 20 years of technical accounting and financial reporting experience with expertise in technical accounting assistance and research, SEC matters including public offerings, regulatory review and comment letter response, Sarbanes-Oxley implementation and ongoing compliance issues and business process improvement and optimization. Prior to joining Jefferson Wells in 2004, Search-Winters held senior-level positions with PricewaterhouseCoopers, Golden Star Resources and Deloitte & Touche. She holds a bachelor's degree in business administration with a focus in accounting from Boston University. She is also a Certified Public Accountant and an active member of the AICPA.
